

HOLI

Holi is a celebration that started centuries ago in India. It is also known as the Festival of Spring or the Festival of Love. It is celebrated according to the lunar calendar which falls in late February or early March.

Holi celebrates the victory of good over evil. It also signifies the end of winter and the beginning of spring. It is a time when you meet new people and repair broken relationships.

The first night of Holi is celebrated with a huge bonfire. The bonfire represents good winning over evil. This night is celebrated with singing and dancing. People also pray that evil is destroyed.

The day of Holi is when the celebrating really begins! People use colored powders or water to spread colors all over. The colored powders are everywhere, and everyone ends the day covered in a rainbow. There are parades and lots of singing and dancing. The day ends with a festive meal.

While the celebration started in India, today, people all over the world have adopted the celebration of Holi.

This colorful holiday is made to celebrate the fact that good wins over evil. This is a time for love, to meet new people, and to repair relationships. What better way to fix a relationship than to hit each other with colored powders!
